About Our Guest Speaker

Judge Michael Nash
Presiding Judge Juvenile Court (Ret.)
Los Angeles Superior Court

Changes and Challenges: Reflections from a Champion for Children and Families

Judge Michael Nash presided over the largest juvenile court system in the nation for over 15 years prior to his retirement in late 2014. Nash has improved the well-being of and permanency for children in the Los Angeles County child welfare system through his efforts to reduce the number of children in congregate care and their length of stay; increase and improve oversight of children receiving psychotropic medication; and the creation of Adoption Saturday. He has promoted collaboration between the child welfare and juvenile justice systems to ensure thorough assessments for children who are involved with both systems. Nationally, Judge Nash is a former president of the National Council of Juvenile and Family Court Judges and a former member of the Board of Fellows of the National Center for Juvenile Justice.

About the California Social Welfare Archives

Established in 1979, CSWA acquires and preserves materials of historical significance and conducts and publishes oral history interviews with social work pioneers to document the development of social welfare in California for use by educators, scholars and researchers.

The California Social Work Hall of Distinction was added to CSWA's mission in 2002 and honors individuals who have made exceptional contributions to social welfare and the social work profession. The biographies in the Hall also provide the basis for study by students in social work programs throughout California. We encourage you to visit our websites and view videos of our events and interviews.
